Dear Daughter

6:52 pm We arrived here on time. and will leave at 8:32 am in the morning Ellen is in better trim this evening than she was last we had a rather mixed experience on the train. the cars were full two in a seat the air was chilly and on account of objections of one or two of the passengers we could not raise the windows. So Ellen appealed to the Conductor a good natured Irishman. to let her sit on the platform so he broke through all rules and granted the request as the

as the train was a restitude you see she had a nice little compartment too her self. I will be the secure a state room if to be had. if not we will stop over for morrow night. she is stubborn nothing new but more than usual. On acct of being tired. she will kick. at the expense. she almost created a scene at the hotel this evening because the two rooms I secured was accoridg to her idea of economy too great.
One was a parlor with a bed and sofa I designed the sofa for Gleaner. and a small room adjoining for my self. all of which I considered the neatest kind of economy. but my efforts were not appreciated.

She wanted two small rooms and have Eleanor sleep with her. it came my turn to get mad and I found it worked all O.K.

Love to all
